The diagram illustrates a text layout engine's internal state for two lines of text. It features a grid of 10 columns and 20 rows. The first line (line 50) contains the text "21 / 34 words" and a list of words: ["the", "political,", "commercial,", "and", "environment", "world.", "But", "it", "all", "must", "start", "with", "form."]. The second line (line 59) contains the text "From this sensation trickles emotion and language, and from language flows narrative and meaning, which then flood into identity, society, and the political, commercial,". The diagram shows the cursor position at the end of the second line, with the word "commercial," highlighted. The cursor's position is defined by its X and Y coordinates, and the word's width is also shown. The diagram also shows the word's position relative to the line's edge, with the word's width and the line's edge being 641.3.
